“MagicQC” – a machine vision based automated
Quality Control System developed by NUTECH

Dear members,

Attached herewith, please find a self-explanatory letter from the Director Industrial Collaboration, National University of Technology (NUTECH), Islamabad, introducing “MagicQC” – a machine vision based automated quality control system, developed under the University’s innovation framework. The system offers automated inspection and quality verification solutions for multiple industrial sectors including textiles.

The association’s support in facilitating interaction with member industries for potential collaboration, technology demonstrations and industrial applications of this system is requested. It is also requested to nominate a point of contact for further coordination, additional information or a dedicated briefing session for your team.
